Description: Die-cast aluminium body, adjustable ratchet-and-pawl/disc check, clicks both ways, supplied in cloth bag.

Comments: A traditional design with a slim profile, small diameter and standard (small) arbor. The small arbor means that line is more likely to gain memory (coils). The reel is light and looks proportional to a small river rod. The spool release lever works quickly but is too small to be easily grasped. The drag is fairly smooth with a wide range of adjustment. The clicker is loud on the retrieve and quieter on the brake. Although it is not the most attractive reel, it is strong, well made and has simple mechanisms; therefore it should be durable. For river-fishing only.
